

In-State National Fire Academy Weekend

March 19 & 20, 2011

Classes start at 8:00 am to 5:00 pm EST both days

Indiana Department of Homeland Security, Indiana Firefighter Training System, and National Fire Academy are offering free training courses for firefighters in Indianapolis, Indiana. The courses are part of the NFA Direct Delivery Courses offered each year from the National Fire Academy.

Marketing Fire prevention in Your Community 273—Course covers the skills and techniques midlevel managers need to provide leadership and direction for their departments. Content includes an overview of significant economic, social, political, and technological influences affecting fire service operations. Students will have the opportunity to identify and relate these influences to their personal and professional situations, and to practice strategies for managing changes resulting from those influences

Decision Making for Initial Company Operations 457—The course is designed to develop the decision making skills needed by Company Officers (COs) to accomplish assigned tactics at structure fires. All activities and scenarios used in this course are based on structure fires. As a CO with the real possibility of being the first to arrive at an incident, the CO's initial decisions will have an impact throughout the entire incident. It is vital that they be able to make good management decisions that have a favorable impact on the eventual outcome. In addition to a possible role as the initial Incident Commander (IC), the CO may well be assigned a subordinate position within the ICS organization. COs need to have a clear understanding of the system, the position they are assigned, and their role in the organization if they are to function effectively and help make the system work.

Managing in a Changing Environment 604—courses geared toward the needs of small communities and rural departments. In this course students begin developing a marketing plan for fire prevention using resources from the first two courses and those already in place in their communities. Upon completion of this course, students will be able to continue developing, refining, and applying a marketing plan that will outline target hazard risks, identify significant opponents, and present allies who may be available within their community.

Training Operations in Small Departments 290—course designed to provide students with some basic tools and skills to coordinate training in a small fire/emergency medical services (EMS) organization. A training function in a smaller department typically may include conducting training drills and coordinating training with a nearby larger city or State training function.

Classroom sessions only—Turnout gear is not required

Still have open seats for most of these courses. Take advantage of this great training opportunity.

FREE TRAINING OPPORTUNITY!
Class size is limited (30 seats per class)

To register for one of these courses go to:

<http://www.indianafiretraining.com/District5>

You will find more course details and register for the course. If you need to cancel, you must do so by March 11, 2011. No shows will not be allowed to attend any NFA training for a two year period. Any further questions contact Steve Walters, NFA State Coordinator at swalters@dhs.in.gov

REGISTRATION DEADLINE February 15, 2011

Training located at:

Emergency Services Education Center
700 North High School Road
Indianapolis, Indiana

